

Armenian police disperse protest after 2 weeks

The New York Times – July 6, 2015

Police cleared away barricades to unblock central avenue in Yerevan, which was occupied for two weeks to protest hikes in electricity prices. Police also detained 46 demonstrators who refused to disperse, but released all of them quickly.

<http://www.nytimes.com/aponline/2015/07/06/world/europe/ap-eu-armenia-protest.html? r=0>

Azeri leader rejects Western criticism over rights, Karabakh

Reuters – July 13, 2015

Ilham Aliyev, president of Azerbaijan, rejected criticism of Western critics after resolutions criticized his country's human rights record and also handling of its conflict with Armenia over the breakaway region of Nagorno Karabakh.

<http://www.reuters.com/article/2015/07/13/us-azerbaijan-rights-aliyev-idUSKCN0PN2HW20150713>

Georgia accuses Russia of violating international law over South Ossetia

The Guardian – July 14, 2015

Georgia accused Russia of violating international law after Russia erected new "border" markings in the disputed region of South Ossetia. It is the latest in a series of similar surprise Russian operations.

<http://www.theguardian.com/world/2015/jul/14/georgia-accuses-russia-of-violating-international-law-over-south-ossetia>

Georgia accuses Russia of moving border near oil pipeline

The New York Times – July 14, 2015

Georgian government has accused Russian troops of redrawing a section of the border separating Georgia from its breakaway region of South Ossetia. Georgia says the de facto border was pushed nearly a kilometer deeper into its territory.

<http://www.nytimes.com/aponline/2015/07/14/us/ap-eu-georgia-protest.html>

After new Russian land grab, Georgians protest Russian talks

The New York Times – July 18, 2015

Georgian government has accused Russian troops of redrawing a section of the border separating Georgia from its breakaway region of South Ossetia. Georgia says the de facto border was pushed nearly a kilometer deeper into its territory.

<http://www.nytimes.com/aponline/2015/07/18/us/ap-eu-georgia-protest.html>